The first version of the “Guidelines for EU Support to Civil Society in Enlargement Countries”, 2014-2020 (EUCSG) was developed during 2013 through a consultative process involving key stakeholders from the region. This present revised version is based on lessons learned and feedback received from representatives of Civil Society Organisations (CSOs), public institutions and other stakeholders on various occasions – in particular the Western Balkans and Turkey Civil Society Forum held in Skopje, North Macedonia on 22 and 23 January 2020; on-line consultations carried out over 2020; and consultations in each IPA beneficiary in February and March 2021. This revised version also takes into account the findings of the 2017 evaluation of the Civil Society Facility and the findings of the Evaluation of the EU’s engagement with Civil Society in the enlargement, neighbourhood regions and Russia 2007-2018. Extensive attention has been given to defining results indicators that can be objectively monitored.

These Guidelines are for EU staff, civil society in the Enlargement region and IPA beneficiary policy makers and officials.

Produced by DG NEAR with the support of EU TACSO 3 for the EU Civil Society Forum for the Western Balkans and Turkey Skopje, June 2022

SUMMARY

The present Guidelines outline the results towards which EU support to civil society in the enlargement region will aspire in the period 2021 – 2027. They are intended for a three-fold audience:

- » For EU staff: to assist them in designing and implementing EU support to civil society; and in analysing the state of affairs concerning civil society in the IPA beneficiaries, including as part of assessing progress towards the Copenhagen political criteria.
- » For civil society in the region: to ensure there is a shared view regarding the expected results of EU civil society support, as regards the enabling environment; cooperation between civil society and public authorities; as well as the performance and standards that CSOs themselves should meet.
- » For IPA beneficiary policy-makers and officials: to assist them in developing and monitoring their own strategies and support for civil society development, by laying out relevant standards and expectations - notably in terms of the enabling environment for civil society and the involvement of civil society in public-policy making and in the EU integration process, and in particular with regards to the fundamentals cluster.

The way in which IPA beneficiaries address these issues is an important aspect under the political criteria, including in the context of the accession negotiations. The Commission's Enlargement Packages thoroughly report on these issues under the fundamentals cluster introduced with the revised enlargement methodology adopted in 2020.

The guidelines are anchored in a solid set of standards. These are based on EU Rule of law Acquis (Chapter 23 “Judiciary and fundamental rights” and Chapter 24 “Justice, freedom and security”) and other relevant international and European standards. They are furthermore aligned with recommendations, opinions and guidelines adopted by international organisations and inter-governmental fora. They apply standards developed by civil society for civil society at the global level.

In the 2021-2027 period, EU support to civil society will continue to focus on strengthening participatory democracies and the EU approximation and integration process in the Western Balkans and Turkey through a strengthened contribution by civil society. EU support will aim at achieving the following three outcomes:

A conducive environment for civil society to carry out its activities

- » An enabling legal and policy environment, for the exercise of fundamental freedoms and rights, with a focus on freedoms of association, assembly, and expression.
- » An enabling financial environment, which supports the sustainability of CSOs, with adequate funding and tax rules for civil society.

Strengthened cooperation and partnership between CSOs and public institutions

- » IPA beneficiary public institutions include CSOs in decision- and policy-making process and oversight, and acknowledge the importance of CSOs in societal policy debate and EU integration processes.
- » IPA beneficiary public institutions contribute to civil society strengthening by cooperating with civil society through strategic policy frameworks and relevant institutional mechanisms.

Reinforced CSO capacity and resilience to carry out their activities effectively

- » CSOs are capable, transparent and accountable.
- » CSOs' work is vision-driven, strategic, and evidence based.
- » CSOs work with adequate financial and human resources.

1 — Civil society – an essential player in the enlargement agenda

The Treaty on European Union (Article 49) establishes that any European State which respects and is committed to promoting the values set out in Article 2 of the TEU, namely the respect of human dignity, freedom, equality, the rule of law and respect for human rights, including the rights of persons belonging to minorities, may apply to become a member of the Union. An empowered civil society plays an important role in ensuring that these principles are upheld in practice and is a crucial component of any democracy.

The enlargement region faces a range of challenges in fields such as the rule of law, including judicial independence, fight against corruption and organised crime, and media freedom, as well as economic development, environmental protection, and social cohesion. Civil society can make a substantial contribution to addressing these, through advocacy, monitoring, innovation, services, and oversight activities. CSOs are essential partners in achieving longer-term transformative societal change.

When it comes to democratic governance, CSOs create demand for enhanced transparency, accountability and effectiveness from IPA beneficiary institutions and facilitate a focus on the needs of citizens. They also contribute to regional integration and reconciliation processes.

In addition, the involvement of civil society in the enlargement process can contribute to deepening citizens' understanding of the reforms needed in order to meet the requirements of EU membership. This will help ensure that EU integration is based on genuine civic participation in the public debate.

The way in which IPA beneficiaries address these issues is an important aspect under the political criteria. The Commission's Enlargement Packages thoroughly report on these issues under the fundamentals cluster introduced with the revised enlargement methodology adopted in 2020.

② — EU engagement with civil society – key EU policy commitments

In its 2012 Communication “The Roots of Democracy and Sustainable Development: Europe’s Engagement with Civil Society in External Relations”², the European Commission outlined preconditions and priorities for EU support to civil society organisations in the external relation context. For the Enlargement region specifically, a more detailed tool for supporting and monitoring civil society development was developed – the Guidelines for EU Support to Civil Society in Enlargement countries, 2014-2020³.

Structured participation of CSOs in policy- and decision-making is a key priority for the EU. The Communication on The Roots of Democracy and Sustainable Development indicates that legislation, policies and programmes must be designed, implemented, monitored and evaluated in an open, transparent and inclusive manner, and duly integrate the achievement and fulfilment of human rights.

The 2018 Commission communication on A Credible Enlargement Perspective for and Enhanced EU Engagement with the Western Balkan⁴ also calls for structured dialogue with an empowered civil society and emphasises the need for an enabling environment for CSOs. Moreover, in the internal EU Better Regulation Agenda, the European Commission commits to listening more closely to citizens and stakeholders, and to ensuring that those affected by policies have the opportunity to contribute to their improvement. The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the EU Consensus on Development reiterate this commitment, calling for stronger and more inclusive multi-stakeholder partnerships.

The 2020 Communication on Enhancing the Accession Process - A Credible EU Perspective for the Western Balkans⁵ introduced a new negotiation methodology: the current negotiating chapters are now grouped into six thematic clusters, including one on fundamentals, which includes judiciary and fundamental rights, the rule of law, democratic institutions and public administration. The backbone of the fundamentals is the EU Rule of Law Acquis (Chapter 23 “Judiciary and fundamental rights” and Chapter 24 “Justice, freedom and security”) and other relevant International and European standards. Negotiations on the fundamentals will be opened first and closed last and will determine the overall pace of negotiations. Thus, these fundamentals will become even more central in the accession negotiations.

The increased emphasis on the fundamentals of EU accession is in line with an increased focus on strengthening and promoting the EU’s core values within the EU through a number of recent EU initiatives, including: The European Democracy Action Plan⁶; the new European Rule of Law

Mechanism⁷, and the new EU Strategy to Strengthen the Application of the Charter of Fundamental Rights⁸.

In October 2020, the Commission adopted the Economic and Investment Plan for the Western Balkans, in order to boost the economic and social development and recovery of the region. Up to €9 billion in EU grants from IPA III is allocated for the Plan, which will mobilise an additional €20 billion of investments. The Plan will invest into flagships in the areas of transport, energy, green and digital transition, private sector and human development, to create sustainable growth and jobs. The Plan also supports regional economic integration to help accelerate convergence with the EU, ultimately speeding up the process of EU integration. Implementation will need to go hand in hand with reforms. Wide involvement of civil society is key to help with the plan’s implementation.

⁷ The European Rule of Law Mechanism provides a process for an annual dialogue between the Commission, the Council and the European Parliament together with Member States as well as national parliaments, civil society and other stakeholders. The EU-27 Rule of Law Reports published annually since 2020 are the foundation of this new process.

⁸ COM (2020) 711 final of 2.12.2020: The Strategy to Strengthen the Application of the Charter of Fundamental Rights focuses on ensuring effective application of the Charter by the Member States and the EU institutions and strengthening people’s awareness about their rights under the Charter. It acknowledges the key role played by civil society organisations and rights defenders and stressed that they should be able to work without fear in a supportive environment.

3 — Definition of civil society

Civil society is highly heterogeneous and encompasses a wide range of actors and aims. The EU considers civil society organisations to embrace a wide range of actors with multiple roles and mandates which includes all non-State, not-for-profit, independent and non-violent structures, through which people organise to pursue shared objectives and ideals, whether political, cultural, religious, environmental, social or economic or related to health [...] They include, but are not limited to: Non-governmental organisations, organisations representing indigenous peoples, women's and youth organisations, diaspora organisations, migrants' organisations, local traders' associations and citizens' groups, cooperatives, employers' associations and trade unions (social partners), organisations representing economic and social interests, organisations fighting corruption and fraud and promoting good governance, civil rights organisations and organisations combating discrimination, local organisations (including networks) involved in decentralised regional cooperation and integration, consumer organisations, environmental, teaching, cultural, research and scientific organisations, universities, churches and religious associations and communities, philosophical and non-confessional organisations, the not-for-profit media and any non-governmental associations and independent foundations, including independent political foundations¹⁰.

The EU values CSOs' diversity and specificities and engages with transparent, accountable and capable CSOs, which share a commitment to social progress and the fundamental values of peace, freedom, equal rights and human dignity.

The EU values CSOs' diversity and specificities and engages with transparent, accountable and capable CSOs.

¹⁰ This general definition is established in the Neighbourhood, Development and International Cooperation Instrument (NDICI) Thematic Programme for Civil Society Organisations - Multi Annual Indicative Programme 2021-2027. It should be noted that for calls for proposals under IPA III more specific criteria may apply.

4 — EU support to civil society under IPA III

In 2008, the Commission established the Civil Society Facility and Media Programme - the CSF - a comprehensive financial framework for support to civil society and media under the Instrument for Pre-Accession Assistance (IPA). Under IPA II, the EU programmed more than EUR 330 million through the CSF.

The EU is committed to continue to support civil society under the new financial framework – 2021 - 2027. The IPA III Regulation clearly indicates the eligibility of support to the enabling environment for civil society, and to civil society capacity, independence and plurality. The IPA III programming framework¹¹ refers extensively to support to civil society, both in a cross-cutting manner and as a specific thematic priority.

For the period 2021 – 2027, the overall objective of the Civil Society Facility is to strengthen participatory democracies and the EU approximation and integration process in the enlargement region through an enhanced contribution of civil society.

Three overarching outcomes will be targeted as enablers for civil society to be able to play its dedicated role across any thematic area of work:

A conducive environment for civil society to carry out its activities.

Strengthened cooperation and partnership between CSOs and public institutions.

Reinforced capacity and resilience of CSOs to carry out their activities effectively.

The below sections provide an overview of these three outcomes. More details are provided in the results framework in Annex A.

¹¹ C(2021) 8914 final, Commission implementing decision of 10.12.2021 adopting the Instrument for Pre-Accession Assistance (IPA III) Programming Framework for the period 2021-2027. https://ec.europa.eu/neighbourhood-enlargement/system/files/2022-01/C_2021_8914_COMMISSION_IMPLEMENTING_DECISION_EN.pdf

4.1 A conducive environment for civil society to carry out its activities is in place

A country wishing to join the EU needs to have in place and implement an appropriate legal, judicial and administrative environment for exercising the fundamental freedoms and rights, with a focus on freedoms of association, assembly and expression. This includes transparent and non-discriminatory registration procedures for CSOs, free and independent operation and cooperation between citizens – formal or informal – and absence of disproportionate or unwarranted state interference, including when dealing with challenges such as terrorism, extremism, money laundering and corruption. An enabling financial environment is required to support the sustainability of CSOs, and to ensure that CSOs are adequately funded to exercise their rights in practice.

In the majority of EU Member States, legislation provides benefits to CSOs pursuing activities considered to be in the public interest. This can be achieved through favourable tax rules for private donations, membership fees and philanthropy. Direct, public financial and non-financial support should be provided and reported in a transparent, accountable, fair and non-discriminatory manner.

4.2 Strengthened cooperation and partnership between CSOs and IPA beneficiary authorities/institutions

Civil society participation is a key factor in ensuring good governance and in developing and implementing legislation and policies that reflect people's needs and are accepted by those concerned. It is also important in the reforms that IPA beneficiaries need to implement as part of their EU integration agenda. Structures and mechanisms for cooperation between public authorities and CSOs should enable meaningful involvement and genuine consultation and consideration of CSOs' contributions in the decision-making process. Free, clear and accessible flows of information on matters of public interest are of critical importance. Minimum standards of consultation should be respected, including functional feedback mechanisms.

4.3 Reinforced CSO Capacity and Resilience to carry out their activities effectively

The EU will engage with CSOs that are committed to strengthening their own resilience and capacity to deliver effectively on their mission. As actors of participatory democracy and social progress, CSOs must also work on improving and safeguarding their own independence, representativeness, transparency and accountability. This includes for example strengthening their membership base and adhering to high internal governance standards. The EU will also support CSOs striving to increase their effectiveness in achieving sustainable results in their respective socio-political environments (local, central, regional), and in their respective thematic mission areas. This can include support to improve their capacity for analysis, monitoring and advocacy, as well as for networking, coalition-building and evidence-based involvement in policy- and decision-making processes. Finally, financial sustainability requires membership development and improved capacity for diversified fundraising targeting public as well as private sources of income. A genuine culture of active citizenship requires local ownership and a diversified, stable source of both private and public funding.

4.4 Modalities of EU Support

The EU will offer a combination of support to help reach the objectives outlined in these Guidelines. It will offer support to IPA beneficiaries to adopt and implement legislation more conducive for civil society to fulfil its functions. Similarly, it will offer support to public institutions to enhance their strategies for civil society development and their implementation. The EU will also continue to promote the involvement of civil society in the pre-accession process, including in the formulation, implementation and monitoring of sector strategies for EU financial assistance, which will be strengthened under IPA III.

Financial assistance to CSOs will continue to be delivered through a mix of funding modalities to respond to the needs of different types of CSOs, including resilience. Building on the experience of the IPA II period, and within the remits of financial rules and regulations, attention will continue to be given to the need for longer-term engagement and flexible support for core activities; fostering partnership and coalition building. There will be continued out-reach to smaller organisations, in particular through financial support to third parties and flexible support mechanisms to respond to their specific needs. Civil society will also be supported under sector programmes through measures that enhance their role and capacities to participate actively in formulation and implementation of sector strategies for EU financial assistance.

Support will be provided both through bilateral and regional channels and will target local, central as well regional levels. Project-specific results will be drawn from the Results Framework in Annex A and outputs, targets and activities will be adapted to each IPA beneficiary situation.

Specific thematic focus areas for support will be defined during the regular detailed programming and contracting stages, and will include, among other things, priority areas stemming from the Economic Investment Plan. Overall, increased participation of CSOs in political criteria issues will be favoured (especially transparency, rule of law, fight against corruption, freedom of expression and media; and fight against discrimination), but also in key economic reforms and acquis alignment, from the dual green-digital transition to human capital and social affairs.

5 — The underpinnings of the Guidelines' specific objectives and indicators

The specific objectives and indicators outlined in these Guidelines are based on a solid set of regional and international standards.

For the conducive environment and relations between CSOs and public institutions, objectives and indicators expressed in the results framework are anchored in the international and European human rights framework, including the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (ECHR), as well as in the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights, which is binding on the Union institutions, and on Member States when they apply EU law. They are furthermore aligned with recommendations, opinions, guidelines and codes of conduct adopted by the Council of Europe, the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe, OECD, the UN, and other inter-governmental fora as well as in similar documents adopted by the European Union.

As regards civil society resilience and capacity, the Guidelines take inspiration primarily from the Global Standard for CSO Accountability¹² developed by civil society at the global level.

The Results Framework in Annex A presents the detailed outcomes and results indicators selected for these Guidelines. The Explanatory Note in Annex B describes the standards underpinning the Guidelines.

The specific objectives and indicators outlined in these Guidelines are based on a solid set of regional and international standards.

6 — Measuring results and impact

DG NEAR will monitor and evaluate its support to civil society at several levels. It will carry out project and programme level monitoring and evaluations. Beyond this, it will analyse the evolution of the state of affairs concerning civil society in the Western Balkans and Turkey including as a means to identify key areas for future attention and support. This will be done through a regular monitoring exercise making use of the indicators and the sources of data indicated in these Guidelines and their annexes. Data will be collected by a combination of desk work, surveys, interviews, and in-depth focus groups. Findings will be validated with CSOs, public authorities and other stakeholders.
